In the Similkameen Valley Where Keremeos Lies

The lands lie in the form of benches or small plateaus and bottomless lower levels next the streams. The valley is roughly classified as the Upper and Lower Similkameen. The Upper Valley is comprised in the territory lying above or west of the Town of Hesley, at Twenty Mile Creek, and contains several thousand acres of arable (about 60,000 acres) choice lands, which are adapted and used for growing all kinds of tame grasses, oats, barley, wheat, etc., and will produce hardy apples, pears and plums, bush fruits and vegetables. The bottom lands along the River are extensive and in the natural state covered with scrub timber, of willow, poplar, pine, etc. The uplands or benches run up into steep slopes covered with knee deep bunch grasses and have been used by the cattle ranchers as summer ranges for the past 30 years, the cattle being taken up from the lower ridges each spring and returned in the fall. This section gets heavy snows and colder winters than the lower valley and is as an altitude of 1600 to 3000 ft. On the headwaters of the streams and extreme top benches is found the heavy mercurial timber.

The Lower Valley being the fruit growing section, is the "spot of attraction" to which the reader's attention is directed. Here are found about 40,000 acres of the choicest fruit lands in Canada, lying in one large continuous open body about evenly divided between bench and bottom lands.

In almost every portion of this Lower Valley the land occurs in the form of a large bottom on each side of the Similkameen River, averaging one-half to two miles in width, and rising abruptly from these lower lands at a height of forty to eighty feet the benches commence and extend back to the mountains on a gentle slope which to the eye appears perfectly smooth but an engineer's level shows a gradual uniform fall from the mountains in the rear toward the river, making ideal slopes for irrigation. In very few cases are there second benches and where they do happen they are relatively small in area, the mountains seem to lift themselves in a rapid rise from the benches with steep slopes to heights of from 4000 to 8000 feet. These slopes while too steep to farm, are covered with sufficient soil to produce the most nutritious bench and winter grasses and at upper levels generally of several thousand feet small plateau level and right up to the very summits the finest grazing is found and here is the ideal winter range, used by the ranchers for the past fifty years. As winter approaches the good lands are brought down from Upper Valley to grass in the warmer climate and he kept under the careful eye of the owner.

The bench lands are covered with bunch grass and sage brush which can be plowed down as easily as prairie land, and they are free from stones and make ideal locations for fruit growing.

The bottom lands are largely open and covered with a native grass, that produces a fine forage. Wherever the timber occurs it is a thick scrubby growth of poplar, willow, with an odd jack pine, and is easily cleared at a nominal outlay, the small streams being removed by horse power or plowed under.

In the past very heavy crops of hay, cereals, vegetables and all classes of fruits have been grown on the bottom lands without irrigation. These lands at a depth of five or six feet have an open porous subsoil through which there is a continual seepage from the mountains and higher lands, and at the high water period the water percolates from the streams, so that there is a natural sub-irrigation supplying these lands all the time.

The Valley has a number of farmers and fruit growers who are living on, and have fully demonstrated that the bottom lands will grow not only heavy crops of grains and grasses, but every variety of apples, peaches, plums, apricots, cherries, pines, pears, berries, currants, and all classes of garden vegetables, and to prove these statements, 20 to 35 year old orchards are to be seen full bearing and heavily loaded without the use of irrigation.

Cause for Alarm

Loss of Appetite or Distress After Eating a Symptom That Should not Be Disregarded

Appetite is just a natural desire for food. Loss of appetite or stomach distress after eating indicate indigestion or dyspepsia. Over-eating is a habit very dangerous to a person's good general health.

It is not what you eat but what you digest and assimilate that does you good. Some of the strongest, heaviest, and healthiest persons are moderate eaters.

There is nothing that will cause more trouble than a disordered stomach, and many people daily contract serious maladies simply through this regard or abuse of the stomach.

We urge all in Claresholm who suffer from any stomach derangement, indigestion, or dyspepsia, whether acute or chronic, to try Reckitt's Dyspepsia Tablets, with the distinct assurance that they are not perfectly satisfied with the results. We recommend them to our customers every day, and have yet to hear of any one who has suffered from indigestion, who has not been benefited by them. We honestly believe them to be without equal. They give very prompt relief, aiding to neutralize the gastric juices, strengthen the digestive organs, to regulate the bowels, and thus to promote perfect nutrition and eradicate all unhealthy symptoms.

We urge you to try a 25c box of Reckitt's Dyspepsia Tablets, which gives 15 days' treatment. At the end of that time your money will be returned to you if you are not satisfied. Of course, in chronic cases length of treatment varies. For such cases, we have two larger sizes, which sell for 50c and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Reckitt's Remedies in this country only at our store—The Reckitt Store, O. L. Rensselaer.

The Female Wage-Earner

It is possible for a female wage-earner to save for a comfortable amount which will be sufficient to provide her with an income from the time her earning days are over; was recently the subject of an interesting discussion at a Women's Club, and the conclusion came to be that if the wage-earner were earning less than $300 a year, this could be extremely difficult. For the purpose of illustration, the period of accumulation was assumed to be from 25 to 60, and the amount of capital required $80,000, in order to yield an income of $800 a year, which was considered to be the minimum amount on which she could maintain herself with comfort and respectability. All this may be quite true. But there is another plan of investment of which the ladies had evidently not heard, namely, the Canadian Government Annuities system, which will give a much larger return for a much smaller investment, and larger it may be said than any other plan available will give as a means of making provision for old age.

For example, if a woman of 23 were to deposit with the Government yearly the sum of $39.24 until she was 60, which she could do by weekly or monthly instalments if she preferred, or a total of $1461.88 only, the Government would pay her $800 a year or $75 every three months long as she might live from and after 60. If she died before reaching that age, the total payments made with 3 per cent compound interest would be refunded to her heirs. If she died at 68 they would receive $2425, 77, or $102.27 more than she had paid in up to that time.

If she had no one dependent upon her and was concerned about herself only, she could secure under the "B" plan the same quarterly income of $75 for an annual payment of $2407, or for a total paid in of $1067.70, a yearly return for life no matter how long that might be of nearly 30 per cent of the sum invested.

Mark the enormous difference on the one hand she would require at 60 a capital of $80,000 invested at 4 per cent to yield her an income of $3200, with all the accompanying anxiety of making safe investments, while on the other hand she could provide the same income for about one-fifth of the purchase money spread in easy payments over the accumulating period. In ninety-nine cases out of one hundred she would not, having regard to the recurring temptation to use the money, have the capital at 60 which would be necessary to give the income. You have only to write (postpaid) to the Superintendent of the Canadian Government Annuities, Ottawa, to obtain full information in regard to this provident scheme.

Consolidation of Rural Schools

At the Teachers' convention which met at Metchosin a few weeks ago, Mr. McMeekin of Staveland gave an excellent address on the above subject. The line followed was an enumeration of the advantages which have been found to attend the plan of consolidating small schools, and encouraging the children to be by means of teams hired for the purpose and driven by responsible men. This system has been widely in use for some years in the eastern provinces and the United States and gives better results than the single district schools in former times.

The advantages are, the safety, comfort and health of the children are better; they are freed from the danger of heating obscure or noxious buildings, the driver keeping order on the way and the teacher of school in the classroom do better in their studies in larger classes where there is more competition than attendance is much better; they are not sick from wet feet or clothing and they enjoy school much more when they have more playmates of their own age. The other advantages are, the increased cost of buildings, heating and upkeep of buildings, fewer and better teachers needed, hence better salaries and hence more willing teachers who would be more willing to remain in the service.

The mail of a wide township may be brought to school and distributed daily by the school teams and the same time may bring people to the school evenings and holidays for social life.

Laths in Canada - 1910

Despite the use of metal laths and patent methods of interior finish, wooden lath production amounted to eight hundred and fifty-two million pieces, worth one million, nine hundred and forty-three thousand dollars in Canada during 1910. This information has been obtained from statistics compiled by the Dominion Forestry Branch which show that nearly thirty million more laths were produced in 1910 than in the year before, but that owing to a decrease in the price per thousand, the total value of the industry was thirty-five thousand dollars less. Two-fifths of the total was cut in Ontario, which province increased its 1909 production by seven million or nearly twenty per cent. New Brunswick, the second province in importance, increased its production of the total one-fifth to one-quarter, by cutting sixty-two million more than last year. The production of laths in Quebec and British Columbia during 1910 was considerably more than in 1909, amounting with Ontario and New Brunswick to ninety-four per cent of the total. The remaining five provinces cut smaller amounts, and with the exception of Alberta, each showed a decrease from the amount produced in 1909. The average price of laths in 1910 was $2.28 per thousand or 16c less than in 1909. The price varied considerably between the different provinces, British Columbia laths being $1.89 per thousand, while in Prince Edward Island the price was $2.67.

Where Are We At

The cool spell of winter weather we have just experienced is by no means to be considered as a surprise of what Alberta can produce in the line of cold snaps if she but try. In 1891 it is said, the thermometer registered below zero below, in 1892, the same temperature was registered till late in April, and 1903, some say, the cold snap continued without a break till January from Nov. 3rd. We were caught in the cold, and the spell in some cases and felt the late sharp winter more keenly.

The grain, so much of which is yet unthreshed in our district, is not suffering. The delay will be a source of loss, but not a source of worry to the farmers. The fact that more threshing hands have left to the East and to the cities before the first real breath of winter, will also have the effect of raising the cost of labor. The necessity of shelling out the same from the stocks will prove a source of delay if left to nature, and a source of expense to the farmer has to employ an extra hand for the purpose. If the farmer is ready to go to further expense and sack his grain, he is safeguarded by any weather and threshing can go on in Ontario, which is now in the days days proceed themselves. The greatest hardship lies in the delay in getting the straw for the grain that cannot be threshed. The farmers are slow run, in many cases, and the merchants are waiting with as much patience as they can muster for the delayed in-flow of money to their customers. It is waiting games, trying to make patients, but it is really as punishing how cheerfully and optimistically the merchants are in face of the "hope deferred".

The most serious point seems to us to be the fact that fall plowing is not advanced as it ought to have been. The grain now in the spring will have to be hurriedly put in and it will more or less depend upon the season as to the outcome of the year's crop. But here we are reminded of the words of the good old Book promising "seed to the sower" and "bread to the eater" and with these we will not be so badly off.

Lost Himself

Last week Constable Willis was informed that a man was lost west of Claresholm and was given a piece of cardboard on which some writing in a foreign language was scrawled with a nail. With the assistance of James McLeod put a powerful magnifying glass the writing was gone over with a pencil and read by "Dad" Aicher, the writing being in German, as follows: "I am lost, hand me with edge?" The mounted police were communicated with and a constable sent to help in the search, but the man was found before the constable arrived in the vicinity. He is a German who has only been in the country about six months and must have been in a rather serious plight. His only food for four days was raw partridges, he having a gun with him but no bullets. The Representative, Leduc.

A Bargain Indeed

It would be impossible to figure what a benefit The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal has been to the West. It affords the greatest amount of genuine good reading for every member of the family and its benefits to the farming community in its agricultural pages are worth hundreds of thousands of dollars every year. It is not merely a theoretical paper. It is a practical farm paper in every respect and there is no farmer in Canada who cannot profit by reading it. Two cents a week, one dollar a year—the price of one bushel of wheat for a whole year's subscription to this great paper, not to speak of the beautiful premium picture "Home Again," size 22x29 inches, ready for framing. It makes one wonder if the publishers pay their paper bills. Any home in this western country that does not receive the Family Herald and Weekly Star for 1912 will miss a bargain indeed.
